The Heart Line

Long, straight line: You're a rational, analytical thinker who always considers others' feelings, and people appreciate that about you.

Short, straight line: You need your freedom. You show your love through actions more than words.

Long, curved line: Your passions and desires drive you, and you don't care who knows it.

Short, curved line: You are reserved and prefer small groups to big ones.

Line with two or more X's at the outer palm: You've experienced a deep personal betrayal.

Line that splits in two: You have a habit of hiding your emotions to help other peoples' needs.

The Life Line

Long line: people can count on you to stay strong in difficult times.

Short line: When the going gets tough, keeping busy helps you feel safe and secure.

Faint line: You may need to chill out now and then. Yoga, meditation, walking, or taking time to play could do you good.

Broken line: Each break in the line represents a traumatic experience that has had an impact on your life choices.

The Head Line

Short line: You're a fast thinker who reaches conclusions.

Long, straight line: Analyze much? You often find yourself thinking a lot before coming to a decision.

Line that splits in two: Sensitive to others, you can easily see someone else's perspective. This means you may change your opinion now and then.

Long, curved line: You're a creative thinker who can imagine many possible outcomes or approaches to any situation.

Fate line

Deep line = strongly controlled by fate

Breaks and changes of direction = many changes in life from things you can't control

Starts joined to life line - self-made person; you know what you want to do early in life

Joins the life line somewhere in the middle – You may have to stop doing what you want because of someone

Starts at base of thumb and crosses life line – help from family and friends
